

A woman with blonde hair and a young girl with brown hair tied in pigtails with large pom-pom hair ties are looking at a smart thermostat mounted on a white wall. The woman is pointing at the screen of the thermostat. They are both smiling. The background shows a modern living room with a grey sofa and a potted plant.

You won't feel the difference when you adjust the thermostat by a few degrees, but your bank account will.

There's no need to heat or cool an empty house if you're away from home during the day. By programming your thermostat, you can save hundreds of dollars per year and the house will still be comfortable by the time you get home. Remember, when it comes to saving energy, you have the power!
